The full details of the Dublin Core Metadata Initiative terms can be found at <http://www.dublincore.org/specifications/dublin-core/dcmi-terms>

The following data formats will be used for data hosted by the Science Service web-platform. If data is shared by third parties in other formats, then it will be converted provided this does not degrade the quality of the data.

Data type	Formats

Wherever possible, content hosted by the web-platform will be shared as open data. This will include data in a wide range of formats.

It is recommended that the web-platform adopts a Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike license for managing open data. This type of license has the advantage over a fully open, or public domain, license in that it ensures that the originators of the content are given due credit – for instance, including where EU funding has supported content development. Appropriate attribution of content will also encourage partners from the wider network beyond the project team to share content with the Science Service. The requirement for any derived outputs to also be shared under a similar licence may be waived for some outputs if that would reduce their usability, or convene any proprietary licenses or protected IP.
